WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS -

Weary 80th Congress Comes to End Of Trail in Welter of Legislation; Truman Ends Political Road Show

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer_

CONGRESS:

Adjourned

Embattled and fatigued, the 80th congress nevertheless managed to spew forth a batch of important legislation with the relentlessness of a doughnut machine before it adjourned for the national political conventions.

In the waning hours before adjournment the dog-tired senators and representatives pushed through farm legislation and a peacetime draft, together with bills having to do with housing, displaced persons, the atomic energy commission, wages of federal employees and foreign aid appropriations.

Republican leaders made it apparent that although congress had adjourned its session the way was being left open for it to reconvene later this year.

Despite this, however, the 80th congress had run its formal course. And that it was a vital, exciting course and one that had produced some momentous legislation no one would gainsay. Partly responsible for this character of congress, of course, was the fact that President Truman had written a record number of vetoes.

Some of the high points of congress' record:

FOREIGN AID-Congress issued billions for the support of Greece and Turkey and for general foreign relief, capping that by underwriting the Marshall plan for world economic survival and revival and establishing the economic cooperation administration as a further investment in the future of 16 friendly European nations.

NATIONAL DEFENSE-Aware of the implications of the realistic foreign policy the U.S. had begun to follow, congress adopted a peacetime draft, demanded a "70-group" air force, appropriated funds to modernize the army and navy, enacted a law to unify the armed forces and created the atomic energy commission.

HIGH PRICES-Congress ignored President Truman's repeated and insistent demands for authority to control prices and wages and kept to the classic Republican conception of "laissez faire" with regard to business and industry. It reduced personal income taxes and reduced the domestic budget by two billion dollars.

LABOR-The Taft-Hartley law was enacted over President Truman's veto in an effort to curb union excesses and restore a better balance between labor and management. The minimum wage law, growing constantly less useful as prices and wages rose, was not re-

DRAFTEES: Back Again

With the peacetime draft a reality in the U. S. again for the first time since 1941 many thousands of young men (19 through 25) are face to face with the prospect of wearing G.I. clothing for 21 months.

Most of them were destined to go into the army, since the navy and air force are scheduled to receive an extremely small percentage of the draftees.

For those non-veterans who wanted to escape the draft there was at least one reasonable method of doing so-enlistment in the national guard or reserves before the President signed the bill. And national guard officers all over the country reported that they were receiving most gratifying number of inquiries from prospective enlistees. Meanwhile, Gen. Omar N. Brad-ley, army chief of staff, reported jovially that the army would try to take on as many as 10,000 draftees a month under the new act.

Selective service, he said, will "back our leadership in the world and will strengthen our foreign policy." That, certainly, was the hope of most Americans, notwithstanding the furious last-ditch efforts of isolationists in congress to block passage of the draft law.

The chief of staff revealed that at present there is only one domestic army division up to full strength. He said the draft and enlistments will bring the army up from 540,000

Is there any immediate emergency that must be met by a prepared army force? Most authorities think not, and General Bradley himself soft-pedalled the idea.

Bongo Bongo

Evidence of a recurrence of cannibalism in French Equatorial Africa has prompted the French colonial administration to launch a vigorous effort to wipe out that evil among the natives.

The government is imposing hard labor penalties on offenders, using that punishment as a threat to break the hold of witch doctors who get free supplies of meat by promoting annual human-sacrifice rituals.

With the all-crucial (for him) Democratic convention only days away, with the Republicans throwing political rocks at him. with southern Democrats blustering against him and his policies and with his own Democratic organization feeling very tepid about his prospects, President Truman could be forgiven indeed for having that "behind-the-eightball" feeling.

RETURN:

Truman

President Truman was back in the White House after journeying 9,505 political miles—one of them the Soviets. on a ski-lift at Sun Valley-to bring his story before U. S. voters.

Mr. Truman traveled 8,534 miles on that there has been no immediate off then, I might have become a by automobile, 225 miles by air, the tightened U. S. controls. 25 miles across Puget sound by yacht and one mile by ski-lift.

In that political hegira the President brought the public up to date on the background of what is probably the most bitter feud between a President and congress since the days of Andrew Johnson.

There is no doubt that the President, safely back at his desk in Washington, was feeling that he had accomplished pretty much what he had set out to do: The arousing of voter-interest in the issues at stake and the presentation of himself to the people in the role of a comradely but hard-hitting President who is the watchdog of their

MEAT:

Too Popular

With the exception of vegetarians and some carrot juice addicts, nearly everyone likes meat. And in the U S. everyone eats a lot of it.

That is why all the Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sprats in America are deeply incensed whenever the meat supply falls off from the normally prodigious amounts available to the con-

A condition of that general description currently prevails in the U. S. and, according to R. J. Eggert of the American Meat institute, it will take at least a year following good crops in 1943 to bring about any substantial increase in the amounts of beefsteaks, pork chops and bacon on the table.

Biggest trouble, Eggert said, is that the ratio of the eaters to the edibles has grown too top heavy since the war.

Wartime drain of flocks and herds and last year's short corn crop are responsible for the currently declining animal population.

But there is no comparable decline in demand in sight. The meat industry forecasts a continuing steady demand for meat because: Incomes are near an all-time high; the real income (actual purchasing power) of the average consumer is one-fourth greater than in 1939; population has increased 15 million in the past decade; people are convinced of the nutritive value of

One Diplomat Knew Better: Scratch One Tyro Diplomat

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON.—Back in the partially-deserted capital after one and before another political convention in these days when Washington's tiger heat drives those who are not too driven otherwise out to the mountains and beaches, I took a short ride with a friendly official who, like most of the press and radio, has to stick out a good share of the summer in the city.

We passed some of the last few fine old residences and a number of embassies and legations. Shutters were drawn, orange-red paint was smeared in a pattern I never have been able to understand on ironwork of high picket-fences and window bars. Some windows were boarded up.

"If it hadn't been for you," I remarked to my companion sitting beside me in what he alludes to as might not have been in Washington this summer. I might have been loafing at a mountain- lakeside or elsewhere . . . "How so?" he

"Don't you recall," I asked, "that you were newspaperman yourself once and, corollarily speaking, met a lot of interesting people? I was one of them. That meeting killed what I thought then was to be a brilliant diplomatic career."

The story begins right across the street from the office I now occupy on Eighteenth street, in a fine old brick house which I saw first in the year 1914. The carriage drive in front of it is blocked now by the curbing, probably because the traffic officials thought no automobile could safely make the turn which a "spanking pair" negotiated so easily three decades ago.

A sign on the lamp-post in front of the house says "no parking at any time." A brass plate over one of the windows, still barred with the gracefully-curving ironwork of another century says: "Columbus University." The plate it replaced used to say "Former Home of Secretary of State Lansing."

In 1914 it was some two hours after leaving that red brick house that I began "putting off"-(putting Significant is the fact that U. S. things off is a great art and one imports from Russia were higher that has reached a high point of diplomat. As it was, all I got was

I planned to rise, by easy stages, on pure merit, of course, to the position of ambassador to the Court of St. James. Beyond that, as a cabinet officer says following a change in administration, I had

I did have four out of five necessary qualifications which I knew from experience on the Quai d'Orsay and elsewhere assured a successful diplomatic career. The four which I possessed were a top-hat, a tailcoat, striped pants and a pair of spats.

The fifth I was confident I could soon acquire easily since I had an excellent letter to the father-in-law of the secretary of state, who had been a secretary of state himself and an important pillar of Washington society. I was sure that under such auspices I could acquire that sine qua non-a wife rich enough to keep a diplomat in the style to which he is supposed to be accustomed.

I recall that afternoon very well. I rang the bell to that door-well, it was a different door of coursethere are four there now with brass handles worn shiny by ambitious Columbians-but at least the door which that afternoon was to be my portal to a brilliant career was right there in the same frame. It opened, I handed the si.k hat and ebony stick to the servant and in a few moments I was being warmly greeted by a gentleman wearing what Sam Blythe once called the most diplomatic whiskers in Washington, John Watson Foster.

I saw that my striped pants and ailcoat which had just enough of a continental cut to make a proper impression, as well as the bowfrom-the-waist I had learned in Berlin, were doing their work and I made mental note of the less unattractive unattached females. So after tossing off a bon mot or two, I left, feeling that my career was virtually launched.

It was still fairly early, so I decided to drop in at the National Press club to which my old schoolmate, David Lawrence, had given me a guest card. As the weather was fine, I decided I might as well walk and give Connecticut avenue a chance to admire my distinguished stripes and tails, although tailcoats and top-hats, per se, caused very little consternation in those days.

As I walked, I idly speculated on what course I would take if kneebreeches were insisted upon when I was presented at court. Meanwhile, I observed the strolling young ladies who, though probably unable to support an ambassador, were nevertheless guite as attractive as any of the better-qualified ones at the reception.

I had just about decided not to make an issue of the knee-breeches thing-after all I had been on the stage for a short period in my career and a couple of pairs of long stockings underneath would do for my calves what nature hadn't-when I found myself at the club.

A tall, black-haired gentleman arose and gave me a dignified greeting. I had thought it best while I was considering my diplomatic career to accept a temporary position with the Associated Press-a position I received after some rather tall talk on the part of David Lawrence and a kindly letter from Superintendent Roberts of the Paris bureau for whom I had worked. The gentleman who greeted me at the club was one of the staff which I was to join, assigned to the state department. And he was the man I alluded to-the friendly officialin the early paragraphs of this

Right there, or shall we say in the course of an hour or two, there developed the beginning of a beautiful friendship and the beginning of the end of any illusions concerning a diplomatic career. I applied for membership in the club, never went to another "at home" in the fine old brick house on Eighteenth street.

From that time on it has been deadlines instead of receiving lines. Although I didn't realize it at the time I really wasn't properly equipped for a diplomatic career-my spats were black.

The diplomatic world has not been altogether neglected in the course of meeting deadlines, but when I entered that allegedly romantic demesne as I still do in the course of my job, it is by way of the back door, an entrance which, I have discovered, often provides a much more revealing view of the surroundings. Perhaps it isn't polite to refer to the chancery entrance that way, but it is certainly not the front door.

As it turned out, not many weeks after I had given up my dreams of becoming a Machiavelli or a Metternich, I found myself a caller at six or eight embassies a day-I was put on the diplomatic run because a war had broken out and it was quite as important for belligerents and nervous neutrals to provide news from their points of view as it was for us to collect it.

The butlers in most of the embassies before World War I would as soon admit a reporter as they would a rug-peddler or a scissorsgrinder. It required considerable working over to bring them into

Another Jawbone For Samson

An old-fashioned dentist thinks the Russians have Hitler's jaw. The dentist, Dr. Plaschke, says he read in a German dentistry magazine that his former assistant, now in Russian custody, had identified a jaw which the Russians were toying with as Hitler's.

Dr. Plaschke claims the assistant couldn't positively identify it, but he himself feels it must be Hitler's because the magazine ridicules the work as old-fashioned. Plaschke says he did an old-fashioned job on Hitler when he made a bridge of 12 teeth in 1934. Plaschke also claims to have studied dentistry at the University of Philadelphia in 1908. Their methods have probably advanced since then, but Hitler was oldfashioned about some things.

All we can do is hope the bridge pained him. And remember that that jawbone, if it's authentic, slew more men than the one from a similar source that Samson used when he went after the Philistines.

One of the features of the Republican convention was a mammoth scapple breakfast. The delegates furnished the scrap.

ABOUT OUR PRESIDENTS

PRESIDENT TRUMAN has the unique distinction of having approved several bills which he had signed as presiding officer of the senate. He vetoed a private bill as President of the United States which be had signed as president of the senate when he was vice president.

PRESIDENT MARTIN VAN BUREN entered the White House with four motherless sons.

ONE OF OUR PRESIDENTS, George Washington, was a farmer. Twentytwo were lawyers, two were army officers, two were in politics, one was a teacher, one a publisher, one was a mining engineer and one a merchant.

U.S. Forecasts Price Troubles For Housewives

WASHINGTON .- Complicated figures just released by the federal reserve board and the department of commerce carry storm warnings for housewives who are already having trouble making both ends meet.

The story is just more of the same old thing: shortages. We want more than is being turned out.

The possible dynamite under prices lies in three new large sums about to go into circulation: (1) money "saved" because of lower income taxes, (2) increased installment payments. (3) increased defense appropriations.

Taxes have been cut 4.8 billion dollars. Much of that tax cut went to working families who are expected to spend it instead of save

Americans are expected to go on the cuff for at least 3.2 billion dollars worth of goods this year. They'll get them through installment buying and through charge accounts. That's the amount they went on the cuff for in 1947, and the rate was rising rapidly at the end of last

That kind of buying dropped off through the war because there were government controls on it. but congress let the controls go in November. Immediately there was an up-

Funds for the Military

War clouds have forced the government to talk of spending more for the army, navy and air force. At first it looked as though the military services could get along on $2,250,704,300 more this year than

Even so, that would have meant so much more money competing for steel, woolen yard goods, leather, autos. But now there are plans to increase that by another three billion dollars. Whether it's two or five billions that the services have to spend this year, it's all new money bidding for what American farms and factories turn out.

Together those three figures add up to between 10 and 13 billion dollars of new spending this coming year, depending on which sum you bet on for the military.

Prices Skid Down

There have been flurries of lower prices which gave rise to hopes among the majority of Americans that live on weekly pay checks. The most dramatic was the downward skid of food prices. It didn't last long. Most of those skids started to climb back up right away.

Anyway, those food prices were only part of the picture. The important figure to consider is how much money mills around daily through the stores and banks. It to now around 28 billion dollars. Economists call that "money in circulation." Add another 10 billion dollars to 13 billion dollars and you've got a lot of money bidding for the same amount of goods

All through 1947 the numbers of people at work hung close to 60 million and their numbers are going up. So far this year 1,759,000 more people were at work than last year.

Business tiself was so optimistic that in 1947 more than 200,000 new concerns opened shop. During those 12 months only 3,476 concerns failed, the lowest number since 1871.

Texas Tests a New Tree

Texas is being made the testing ground for a new type of tree for the state. The Texas A. & M. College Forest Service recently received from the Harvard aboretum a small quantity of seed from a tree species which, until a year ago, botanists believed had disappeared from the face of the earth millions of years ago. The seeds are from the metasequoia, and Silviculturist Chief D. A. Anderson of the Texas Forest Service plans to find out whether they will grow in the state.

The metasequoia, scientists believed, disappeared from the earth about the time of the dinosaur and other giant reptiles. Then in February, 1946, H. H. Hu, a Chinese forester, discovered that the species were growing in a 100-mile area of the Szechuan and Hopen provinces. Harvard joined in an expedition which cofirmed the discovery, and this year obtained some of the seed, which are being distributed to recognized silviculturists for experimental planting in this nation and Europe.

The metasequoia, a coniferous species, is a "cousin", to the giant sequoias growing on the slopes of the Sierras in California. Its history can be traced back into antiquity, along with the ancient ginkgo tree. Today there are only a little over 1,000 trees of this species-almost on the verge of extinction.

Whether the seed received by the Texas Forest Service will prosper and grow metasequoias here only time will tell. However, the Chinese area where the trees were found is in about the same fatitude of Texas. The tree grows more than 100 feet high, bears cones and sheds its leaves in winter.

Men well governed should seek after no other liberty, for there can be no greater liberty than a ▼ good government.—Sir Walter Raleigh.

LL along Elm street to the old | ALL along Entir street drawing people like a magnet. From where Ellie sat, on the top step in front of Mrs. Blodgett's boarding house, she could see them hurrying along in groups and couples, laughing and chatting, their merriment floating back to her on the early summer air. Cars whizzed by, carrying others, till it seemed the entire population of the little town was rushing in one direction. All, that is, except Ellie-and possibly Mrs. Blodgett, who, now that the supper work was over, sat contentedly in the kitchen, resting her feet.

There was nothing in the world like carnival music, reflected Ellie, leaning her head wistfully against the porch rail. The nostalgic ripple of tunes, half sad, came to her on sudden bursts of breeze, cutting into her heart with the sharpness of pain. She closed her eyes to shut out the sight of the couples-always the couples, passing through the early dusk, smiling into each other's eyes, murmuring words of which only the tone need be heard.

Carnivals are for couples, she thought. No, for children, too for families, even for old people, visiting their neighbors and winning lamps and blankets. But not for someone alone. Never for someone alone. You could walk through the crowded grounds under the blaze of lights, caught in the blare of melody, and become the loneliest person in all the world. She had been doing fine till the carnival came to Greyville. Why, she thought, oh, why, did the carnival have to come?

She opened her eyes, at a soft touch on her knee, and saw Patty Brown, a little neighbor girl, sitting on the step below her.

"Gee," sighed Patty, on a long, mournful breath. "Isn't it LONE-SOME?"

Ellie smiled. "For you, too?" she asked.

Patty nodded, hard, "Yes," she said soberly. "Everybody's gone to the carnival but us. I guess you and me, and Miz Blodgett and my Grandma, we're about the only ones in town that didn't go. Miz Blodgett, she never goes anywhere, anyway, and neither does Grandma since my Grandpa died. My Grandpa was swell! He always took me to carnivals." She shook her head in rapturous recollection.

"You live with your grandmother?" Ellie asked. She felt suddenly ashamed of how little she knew the neighbors. She had been boarding at Mrs. Blodgett's several months, since first she came to Greyville to work in its dress factory and to work even harder at the serious business of forgetting Bruce.

"Ever since I remember," answered Patty. "My Grandpa loved carnivals like I do. Grandma was always scoldin' him about it, but he'd take me every night and we'd go on the rides and buy cotton candy. My," she breathed, "I sure miss Grandpa."

Ellie studied the serious small face, framed by the smooth brown pigtails. Here too was someone adjusting to a loss, and she had not even taken the trouble to find it out. She had seen Patty often enough, running errands for Mrs. Blodgett and playing hopscotch or jacks on the wide front sidewalk, but she had been too absorbed in her own affairs to ask about the child. How selfish people are, thought Ellie.

"Patty," she asked humbly,

"would you like to go to the carnival with me?"

"Yipes!" uttered the little girl, almost toppling off the step backward. "Would I!"

"Be careful!" cried Ellie, thrusting an arm about the little shoulders. She laughed in spite of herself to see the change in the young face. There was nothing serious about it now. It was afire with the dazzle of carnival lights themselves.

"I'll go ask Grandma," shouted Patty, bounding across the lawn. "I'll be right back."

"Bring a wrap," called Ellie after the swinging pigtails, "It may be cool on the rides." She went inside for her own light coat and to go over her makeup at the dresser. Her face in the mirror was smooth and quiet, showing only in pallor the turmoil of the empty months. It was still quite a good face, the eyes a

I who am without the magic.

Patty, high on the merry-goround, clung lovingly to her horse's bridle and waved to Ellie every time she passed.

"That was fun," she beamed, finished at last, running to Ellie for new adventure. They joined hands and started over the grounds.

"Who's your girl friend, Sis?" asked a man's voice.

Instantly guarded and alert, Ellie turned to look. She gazed warily, straight into two gray eyes. So gray, she thought. I'll always be a pushover for gray eyes. He was not a dressed up young man, but he looked nice with his soft shirt open at the neck, showing his tanned

She would forget all other

"Oh, my goodness," complimented Patty. "You look beautiful!"

Ellie laughed. She tucked the child's hand under her arm and they started for the park grounds. The groups were dwindling now. As Patty had said, most everybody was already there.

"It's funny you haven't got a boy friend," Patty mused. "Pretty as

"I used to have one," Ellie obliged, out of a long silence. "His name was Bruce."

Patty considered gravely, but asked no more questions.

"Oh, look!" thrilled Patty. "There it is. Please, please, let's go on everything!"

"Most everything," Ellie amended, "not the really rough rides. But the

She held tight the warm, squirming hand in her own, to fortify herself for the first glimpse of the sprawling tents. "You have to get over this, Ellie, my girl," she told herself, gulping down the lump in her throat. "Tonight's as good a time as any."

It was like all carnivals before, without the magic. No, she decided, throat His face was tanned too, right up to his straight black hair. "Oh," said Patty, startled. "She's

"Uh-huh, I remember," said Patty. "He's Mr. Kenyon," she told Ellie, "the man that was riding around in the loudspeaker car. He told me his name today."

"Fun and frolic for all," mimicked the young man, using his hands for a megaphone, "that's me."

"Since Ellie hasn't a boy friend," Patty suggested, "maybe you'd like to take us on the ferris wheel?" Ellie's chill expression warmed to a flush, "Pat!" she exclaimed.

"Mr. Kenyon already knows you haven't got a boy friend," soothed Patty. "I told him when he asked this afternoon."

"Pat!" protested Ellie again,

"She used to have one," Pat continued helpfully, "but not any more."

"I used to have a girl friend too," offered Mr. Kenyon. "I know how it is. I'd like to take you on the ferris wheel. Take over for a few minutes, will you, Mike?" he called to a man at the shooting gallery.

Helplessly, Ellie found herself engineered along.

"So you were asking about me," she managed at last.

"Yes," he answered. "In a little place like this, who wouldn't be? You're an attractive girl, you know. This is a nice town too."

"What ever happened to her?" asked Patty, "the girl friend you haven't got any more?"

"She didn't like my job," replied Mr. Kenyon. "She said she couldn't see any future in it, but it was the only work I knew."

"Huh!" snorted Pat, "She must have been silly!'

"Oh, no," said Mr. Kenyon, "but she made me mad and we had a quarrel. I told her there was another girl who would like it fine. There wasn't, of course, but my real girl

Kathleen Norris Says:

Marriage Can Be Successful Bell Syndicate .- WNU Features

ful marriage is the most unusual and the most satisfying.

"T WANT my marriage to be L a success. Is there any secret?" This is what a girl from Philadelphia writes me in a most touching letter. She is 22, has been motherless since her 14th year and has been managed by a grandmother, aunts, her father and not one but two stepmothers.

The marriage history of most of these persons isn't happy. Mary Lee's grandmother was widowed young, married and divorced and now is separating from her third mate, a man 33 years old. Two aunts are divorced and her first stepmother and her father did not make a success of it.

"George is 29," writes Mary Lee. "He is my dream man, although I am not silly enough to tell him that. But he truly has been my ideal since he was in college and I was in first year high school. He has a fine job with an oil company. He has been buying a love of a home, six rooms and a garden in a lovely neighborhood, and everyone is sending us things. Of course, I am the happiest girl in the world."

"But what I want to know," the letter goes on in a more serious tone, "is how to begin now to make my marriage a success. I want children and friends. I want to be a sort of woman that other women admire as a wife and mother; I want a silver wedding in 1973, with children and grandchildren.

Determined to Succeed

"George seems perfect to me now -gentle and wise and liked by everybody. But I see the wrecks of marriage all about me and I feel that there must be some secret rules, some way in which, if a man and his wife are determined to stay together and to go on loving each other, they can do it. My mother and her mother were good and devoted wives, but you can't imagine how afraid I am of mistakes, how anxious I am not to do something that I will regret all my life. And George," this charming and innocent letter ends, "feels the

In reply, I want to tell Mary Lee that she and her George, in making these resolves, are starting right. And for the rest, if they will try to remember as the years go by that they both are humans, both faulty, both given to changes of opinion and inconsistencies in action, they will find it easier to forgive each other when the inevitable

Put him first in everything. That's perhaps as important a rule as any. Keep him feeling so comfortable and so loved that he always will want to put you first.

This doesn't mean spoiling him or making a doormat of yourself, but it does mean consideration for his ideas and his dignity. It means that you don't make plans without consulting him and that if he isnt enthusiastic about parties, dancing or your old girlhood friends, go very light on all these for a time. Eventually you will work out your own friends, both together, and then parties will be more enjoyable than any lopsided affair where one partner or the other is feeling bored or

NUPTIAL BLISS

Despite dreamy platitudes heralding the neverceasing happiness in marriage, the fact remains that married life is a business. It must be nurtured, cherished and nursed with extreme tenderness and care. Successful marriages are not accidents nor are they unions which resulted from some perplexing, mystical force. They are successful because the participants want them to be and exercise every bit of ingenuity at their command in an allout effort to achieve their ambition.

Mary Lee, 22, is on the verge of being married and apprehensively seeks a secret formula for success in her marriage. She is wary of success because she has witnessed much bitter unhappiness in the marriages of close relatives who have been unable to reap a fruitful harvest from the state of matrimony.

than from any other. Keep the honeymoon light alive by affectionate little acts and words. Never stop them. Just one little sentence of praise for your husband's generosity will make him more generous. Just saying that he was right in some conversation with other persons will warm his heart and straighten out any hurt or mortification he feels about it. Think About the Future

And above all, Mary Lee, build for the future. The 20's are not all of life, nor are the 30's. It may be that you will be starting the 40's when you, George, Margaret, George Jr. and little Betsy go off for that holiday cruise for which you are hungering now. It may be on the morning of your silver wedding that George, smiling that smile that has meant happiness for you for 25 years, will ask you to open that big box from the furrier's and see if you like it.

You'll still be young, handsome, able to enjoy to the full every moment of the harvest you are sowing now. In fact, I'm not sure but what these later joys have a flavor and a deepness that the younger years never know.

Take as much happiness as you can along the way; keep the real friends, endure whatever you must from George's family with laughter and philosophy and make them love you; go in for picnics, weekend trips, outdoor meals, books, music, garden - everything that the fortunate life of a young American wife may hold.

School yourself not to want what you can't have. Remind yourself that you will change with the passing months and so will George. He'll amaze you sometimes by the wholeheartedness with which he abandons his plans and accepts

And believe me, of all the triumphant achievements of a woman's life, a successful marriage is the most unusual and the most satisfying. My good wishes and my prayers will be with you on your wedding day, Mary Lee.

HOME Town REPORTER IN WASHINGTON WALTER SHEAD, WNU Correspondent

Truman on First

PHILADELPHIA-With hundreds of delegates to the 29th quadrennial Democratic convention already here including many of the revolting southerners headed by their champion, Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi, with the platform committee headed by Sen. Francis D. Myers of Pennsylvania already in session over the troublesome civil rights and other issues, with convention managing director Neale Roach of Washington on the job here for several months finally heaving a sigh of relief as housing, seating, credentials and other details finally were settled, this reporter predicts that President Truman will be the convention nominee for his first full term and on the first

On the eve of this convention, as happened only a few short weeks ago when the Republicans were here in this same convention city and convention hall, all is colorful confusion as the big show prepares to get under way. We see the same decorations, only the pictures of Republican leaders have been replaced by those of Democratic lineage.

If anything, these Democratic delegates are a little louder, more boisterous than their Republican counterparts. And it appears to this reporter that the big fight in this convention will not be on the presidency, despite the southern threats and the protestations of Americans for Democratic Action, composed of erstwhile New Dealers. It will be on the platform planks and the nominee for the vice presidency.

Aside from the southern Democratic caucus, scheduled this week prior to the convention, in which the doubtful claim is made that 15 states will be represented, one point of pre-convention interest is the plans being made for celebration of the 100th anniversary of the Democratic national committee which was created just a century ago by the Democratic convention at Baltimore in 1848.

It may be interesting to note that the first Democratic convention was held at Baltimore in 1832, and the only Democratic convention ever held in Philadelphia was in 1936.

Delegates from a few of the southern states are determined to start a revolt against President Truman if possible. At this writing they had determined upon no candidate, alvorces arise from this one source though a few had been pledged to General Eisenhower.

However best informed observers here declare the Eisenhower boom has fallen flat. The former chief of staff doesn't want it, has said so unmistakably and for all anyone knows at this convention he is a Republican. Associate Justice William O. Douglas has personally told President Truman he will not be a candidate.

There will be several names placed in nomination, no doubtfavorite sons who will get a complimentary vote. For instance, the Ohio delegation is pledged to W. A. Julian of Ohio, treasurer of the United States. But after these complimentary votes are given and before the result of the first ballot is announced, the prediction is that the president will have more than the necessary 618 votes out of the 1,234 delegates and the nomination likely will be made unanimous.

Democrats Optimistic

Generally speaking, Democrats here are jubilant over the increased chances of their party as a result of the president's cross-country swing. There is no doubt but that he not only did himself good insofar as the voters are concerned, but also that he brought some rejuvenation and fight into the ranks of party leaders. He demonstrated that he is a scrapper himself, not afraid to swap punches and even before his trip was over he had some of the GOP congressional leaders whim-

It is evident that the President intends to make the record of the 80th congress on domestic affairs one of the major issues of his campaign. For more than two years the GOP controlled congress worked its will with the President kicking his program, his messages and his suggestions on domestic problems from pillar to post. And the first time he fought back he drew screams and screeches of anger from his GOP opponents, who also must go to the people on the record of accomplishment of the 80th congress.

Veterans at Helm Some party veterans will be at the helm when the Democratic convention gets under way. Sen. Alben Barkley, minority leader, is keynoter and temporary chairman. Congressman Sam Rayburn of Texas, who was speaker of the house longer than any other man, is permanent chairman. Mrs. Mary Norton of New Jersey, member of congress since 1924 and veteran national convention delegate, is chairman of the credentials committee.

1948 HONORARY AWARDS

BATHERTOP, HORACE J .- Few men are more deserving of this signal recognition. Throughout the past year you at no time cut a boxtop, worked on a prize slogan or dropped everything to try for a jackpot. Take a degree of Doctor of Extraordinary Willpower and help yourself to a glass of beer.

- - -MOOSEJAW, BASIS R .- It is a pleasure to see you in today's line of honorary degree takers. So far as we know, you are that outstanding example of manhood, an American who, having his old car to dispose of, let his neighbor have it at a low price instead of conniving with slick operators to get twice what it was worth. Take any degree that fits, and won't you stay for lunch with the faculty?

CARP, OSCAR W .- On numerous occasions you were observed standing in the doorway of a bus in the rush hour. Asked to step forward, you did so. A degree is not enough, Oscar. Name your wish and you shall have it.

WIGGLESWORTH, PRENTICE K .- The university crowns you a man among men and a citizen extraordinary. Although in a position by a little skulduggery and a mild twisting of conscience to get money from the government, you bothered to realize that Uncle Sam is being gypped right and left, that he is in a hole up to his neck and that he is too good a guy to swindle. You also openly expressed concern about the government's financial future, even dropping the funnies to analyze the situation. You get not only an honorary degree but strawberry ice cream with cherries.

CRUMMETT, THADDEUS R .-You are an American workingman and union member. We have the positive proof that, instead of blindly following a wild-eyed leader when you were convinced he was wrong, you voted the other way at the special meeting. You were heard to make the statement on your feet and in a loud voice, "I could be right, too." Take a box of cigars as you go out and help yourself to the chicken sandwichesall white meat.

TUPPER, HALLOWAY G.-We want you to take a degree printed on special gloss paper and also $1,000 in cash. Called before a committee of the United States congress in a time of national crisis to answer the simple question, "Are you a member of the Communist party?" you did so. You did not demand to read a long statement. Furthermore, you showed up without your lawyer. Get up there nearer the head of the line where you belong!

COOKSEY, GERALD K. H. -What are you doing away down here? We meant to honor you first. You shot a composer of radio jingles on sight. See us in the dean's office later. We're throwing a special party.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: Could you give me any information on tile flooring? Can I do the work myself?

ANSWER: Whatever type you choose, remember that a solid color will show dirt very quickly. Mottled colors stay clean-looking much longer. It is perfectly possible for a home owner to lay tile, provided he is handy with tools and has a good guide book. Any kind of tile must be set in the proper "bed" no matter whether it is clay tile, asphalt, rubber or anything else.

QUESTION: Should one patch plaster that has come off in a basement?

ANSWER: If it's ordinary plaster that is used for living rooms, it would be best to remove all of it instead of trying to patch it. This type of plaster is affected by dampness and is not intended for use in a basement.

QUESTION: How can I polish bad scratches off my glass table

ANSWER: That type of polishing cannot be done at home. It is a job for a dealer in plate glass who has the equipment.

Sweet Allyssum Sweet alyssum is an important

garden accessory. Its real purpose is to accent—to edge borders and paths and to point up other garden flowers and shrubs. There are several varieties of sweet alyssum, ranging in height from four to 12 inches. Height is an important point to consider in making the selection, since shearing is necessary for continuous bloom. Plants that are too low for shearing-those that grow to a height of only four or four-and-a-half inches, for example, will go to seed early in the season.

QUESTION: There are finger marks on the head board of my bed, probably caused by perspiring hands. How can I remove these

ANSWER: Clean the surface by washing with thick suds of mild soap, not just thin, watery soapsuds. Follow with a clean, damp cloth and rub dry. Turpentine may also help. If this does not work, try subbing the marks with a scratchless scouring powder and a little light oil on the ball of your finger.

100 Things You Should Know About--

This is the first of a series on the Communist conspiracy and its influence in this country as a whole, on religion, on education, on labor and on our pernment. Prepared and released by the Committee on Un-American Activities, U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.; J. Parnell Thomas, New Jersey, Chairman; Karl E. Mundt, South Dakota; John McDowell, Pennsylvania; Richard M. Nixon, California; Rich B. Vail, Illinois; John S. Wood, Georgia; John E. Rankin, Mississippi; J. Hardin Peterson, Florida; F. Edward Hobert, Louisiana; Robert E. Stripling, Chief Investigator and Benjamin Mandel, Director of Research.

Forty years ago, Communism was just a plot in the minds of a very few peculiar people.

Today, Communism is a world force governing millions of the human race and threatening to govern all of it.

WHO ARE THE COMMUNISTS? HOW DO THEY WORK? WHAT DO THEY WANT? WHAT WOULD THEY DO TO

For the past 10 years your committee has studied these and other questions and now some positive answers can be made.

Some answers will shock the citizen who has not examined Communism closely, Most answers will infuriate the Com-

These answers are given in five booklets, as follows:

COMMUNISM IN GOVERNMENT. These broklets are intended to help you know a Communist

when you hear him speak and when you see him work. If you ever find yourself in open debate with a Communist the facts here given can be used to destroy his arguments and expose him as he is for all to see.

Every citizen owes himself and his family the truth about Communism because the world today is faced with a single choice: To go Communist or not to go Communist. Write the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Room 226, Old House Office Building, Washington, D. C., for the above list.

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of texic impurities. The act of living—lije itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good heath is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide discress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, ail worn out.

They got among them, hoping to use them as shields. But again their ruse failed, for so many of their Corses were killed that they had to mount the remaining and retreat hurriedly to the encircling higher ground.

The Apaches' strategic position in the low hills made some type of breastworks imperative for the besieged group, and Wallace ordered the killing of their own extra horses and pack mules. A MAN WHO DID FINE WORK

BEZALEL, grandson of Hur, son of Caleb, was called of God to superintend the building of the and calls for a cool supper, why not Tabernacle. His name means "un- try a really cool supper? A loaf der the shadow of God." He knew of tomato aspic served with marihow to do fine work, having been nated shrimps makes a good main trained in Egyptian art and handicraft-metallurgy, carpentry, weaving, embroidery, leather-dyeing, gem-cutting and confections. He even knew the art of apothecary. Best of all, he loved to do fine work. It is one thing to possess the know how, it is yet another thing to love the execution of a great design.

TRAITS OF CHARACTER

BEZALEL possessed knowledge as a fine craftsman, but back of this technical knowledge was spiritual discerament. He was filled "with the spirit of God." He worked at the temporal, but he worked for the eternal.

He possessed wisdom-wisdom which comes only from God. Wisdow which means understanding in the sense in which Solomon speaks in Proverbs.

Picture life with every workman filled with the spirit of God, and delicious cookies will complete the possessing an understanding of his meal. task in the light of God's eternal will. Here, I fancy, Henry Van Dyke may have got the inspiration for his great poem on "Work."

HANDS THAT SERVE GOD

A HOLIAB, meaning "the father is my tabernacle," was called of God to help Bezalel in this high and holy task. He was of the tribe of Dan-which tribe furnished Hiram as chief artist in building Solomon's temple. Aholiab, "given of God" for this divine task, gladly dedicated his skillful hands in helping Bezalel.

And there were many others who helped-"wise hearted," we read. Here was a task, God's task, and a loaf pan and chill until firm. Unhere were leaders, Bezalel and Aholiab, ready to serve God; and here were helpers, wise hearted.

WORK FOR EVERY DAY

TURNING now from the fascinating story of how Bezalel and Aholiab and their helpers constructed and furnished the Tabernacle at Sinai, according to the minutest detail as outlined in the passages above cited. Let us ask, What about our work?

There is work for everyone every day. "To every man his work." And every task is essential in bringing to pass the Kingdom of God on earth. God did not make us for idleness He made us for a purpose -that purpose to do our particular work. None other can do what God has ordained that we should do.

"My father worketh hitherto, and I work," said Jesus. "Work, for the night cometh when no man can work

Will my work be done ere the night come?

"Time worketh. Let me work, too. Busy as time my work I ply, Till I work the work of eternity."

OF COURSE, there are nothing like hamburgers for a real favorite as a supper dish. But, here's a new way to prepare the burgers. for they're smothered in onions and

> Special Hamburger Patties (Serves 6-8)

1/2 cup milk

1 cup soft bread crumbs 1/2 cup grated onion

1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning

11/2 teaspoons salt 2 pounds hamburger 4 tablespoons flour 6 slices bacon

Add seasonings, bread crumbs and milk to meat. Mix well and shape into patties, three-fourths inch thick. Dredge with flour. Wrap a slice of bacon around each patty and fasten with a toothpick. Broil patties until they are thoroughly cooked and nicely browned.

Cook one-half pound of broad noodles until tender; then season with butter, salt and pepper. While noodles cook, slice three large onions and fry them in drippings.

To serve, place noodles on a hot platter, top with hamburger patties and smother with the onions.

A DELICIOUS DESSERT that goes well with this is a pear pie. Bake it in a glass dish and bring it out to the porch to serve.

*French Pear Pie (Makes 10-inch pie)

Pastry: 11/4 cups flour

1/4 teaspoon baking powder 1/4 teaspoon salt

6 tablespoons shortening 3 to 4 tablespoons ice water

Filling:

6 cups sliced pears 3 tablespoons lemon fuice

1/3 cup corn syrup

1/3 cup sugar

1/2 teaspoon ginger

2 tablespoons flour Topping:

1/3 cup shortening

1/2 cup brown sugar 1 cup flour

To make pastry, sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or two knives until it is the size of peas. Add water in small quanti-

French pear pie is a delightful dessert for those porch suppers you're bound to be having. The pie is made deep and the topping is a crumbled mixture, part of which will melt into the pears to make them even more deli-ties, mixing with a fork until it just holds together. Pat into ball and chill. Roll dough out and line a glass pie plate, pressing dough into fluting.

To make filling, peel, core and slice pears; mix with lemon juice, corn syrup, sugar and flour. Place in unbaked rie shell.

To make topping, cream shortening and brown sugar. Mix in flour and top near mixture with this. Bake in a moderate (375 degree) oven for about 45 minutes until pears are done.

Creamed potatoes will be more interesting if they have some chopped dried beef added to them. If you're not too hungry, this will take the place of meat.

A quick and easy way to prepare a ham slice is to bake in a sauce made of one cup of water, one-half cup brown sugar and a few slices of orange, stuck with cloves.

Sausage meat can be mixed with egg and soft bread crumbs, then baked and served with cooked, drained and lightly fried noodles.

OO FAR the United States has I taken only a mild interest in the coming Olympic games to be held this summer in London. It has been taken for granted that the U.S. will mop up again as usual. Even more so this time, with our athletes wellfed and most other competitors reportedly underfed.

'So if we win, well, why not? The United States team should win in a romp. It shouldn't be even close. It should be no contest. That's the early setup. No credit if you winpretty awful if you lose.

At the Berlin games in 1936, we had several talks with trainers and coaches and star athletes from other nations. Here was their verdict:

"The United States is a nation of acrobats-not athletes. You can't win from 400 meters and on beyond this distance. You have no runners with any staminarunners who can travel a mile and "You are marvelous acrobatslike circus performers. You can sprint and pole vault and hurdle. These are all acrobatics. They make no demand on stamina or courage." It still takes an athlete to run and jump.

The answer is that we have won too seldom at testing distances. We have no runners from the mile to the marathon worth naming.

Once again, we'll probably win the pole vault-rated a feat of acrobatics and not the work of an athlete by foreign nations. It is certainly on the easier side than it is to get ready for 1,500 or 5,000 or 10,000 meters.

The U.S. has never been much interested in stamina-which is even more important than speed. Speed gives out quickly. Stamina carries you all the way through.

When you sift all the angles, the United States hasn't done nearly as well as our ballyhoo experis have figured out the case. Without our Negro stars, this country would have been something of a joke.

In place of mopping up in London, we still can be something of a joke -despite the winning edge we have in food, the main basis of condition. We have every advantage this way. It will be interesting to see what

Stars Miss Big Show

One world series weakness is that too many stars had no chance to show at the big show.

Napoleon Lajoie, one of the greatest, never was seen in this classic. And he was something to see, the most graceful ballplayer that ever lived. And one of the game's greatest natural hitters.

Walter Johnson came to his first world series when he was on his way over the mystic hill. The earlier Walter Johnson would have joined Mathewson with three shutouts. Bob Feller has never had a world series appearance, and Feller also is just about over the top. Feller came to Cleveland 12 years ago and he has been pouring that fast ball through for a long time. The navy also took three or four of his best years. The navy caught him at his peak and held him a long time.

Also after returning to baseball, Feller has given a good part of his time to outside interests, which hasn't helped his baseball. But he still would be a shining spot in any post-season championship. Feller is one of the all-time greats. He won't have to bother about his spot at

Cooperstown. Rube Waddell, a world series natural, had his lone chance in 1905 when he suffered an injured shoulder in a train scuffle. So the Mathewson - Waddell duel never came off. That would have been up in the super class, the motion picture colossal stuff.

Still many stars have made the world series grade-Mathewson, Alexander, Cobb, Ruth, Collins, Jackson, Hornsby, Grove, Wagner, Brown, Kling, Plank, Coombs, Bender, Johnson, Wood, Fox, Fritsch, Dizzy Dean, Cochrane, Dickey, too many more to mention.

It would be nice to see Feller and a few more stars, who have never made the big show, slip under the tent and mingle with the elephants. . . .

Fitzsimmons Is Tops

In the middleweight boxing division my nomination for the top man is Bob Fitzsimmons. Fitz was middleweight champion, light-heavyweight champion and heavyweight champion. He was a brilliant boxer. He was also a terrific puncher.

Fitz broke seven bones in both hands punching Jeffries in their second fight. He almost ripped Jeff's face away from his head. But he couldn't knock out the Jeffries of that period. No one else could. And this includes Jack Johnson who whipped a half-bald, fat, fading old-timer who was in no shape to fight anybody.

I saw Jeffries training for the Johnson fight in 1919. He was pitiful. He was a long way from the Jeffries I knew in 1903.

Can Black-Draught Help Physical Fatigue?

Yes, Black-Draught may help physical fatigue if the only reason you have that listless feeling is because of constipation. Black-Draught, the friendly laxative, is usually prompt and thorough when taken as directed. It costs only a penny or less a dose. That's why it has been a best-seller with four generations. If you are troubled with such symptoms as loss of appetite, headache, upset stomach, flatulence, physical fatigue, sleeplessness, mental haziness, bad breath - and if these symptoms are due only to constipation - then see what Black-Draught may do for you. Weary 80th Congress Comes to End Of Trail in Welter of Legislation; Truman Ends Political Road Show

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer_

CONGRESS:

Adjourned

Embattled and fatigued, the 80th congress nevertheless managed to spew forth a batch of important legislation with the relentlessness of a doughnut machine before it adjourned for the national political conventions.

In the waning hours before adjournment the dog-tired senators and representatives pushed through farm legislation and a peacetime draft, together with bills having to do with housing, displaced persons, the atomic energy commission, wages of federal employees and foreign aid appropriations.

Republican leaders made it apparent that although congress had adjourned its session the way was being left open for it to reconvene later this year.

Despite this, however, the 80th congress had run its formal course. And that it was a vital, exciting course and one that had produced some momentous legislation no one would gainsay. Partly responsible for this character of congress, of course, was the fact that President Truman had written a record number of vetoes.

Some of the high points of congress' record:

FOREIGN AID-Congress issued billions for the support of Greece and Turkey and for general foreign relief, capping that by underwriting the Marshall plan for world economic survival and revival and establishing the economic cooperation administration as a further investment in the future of 16 friendly European nations.

NATIONAL DEFENSE-Aware of the implications of the realistic foreign policy the U.S. had begun to follow, congress adopted a peacetime draft, demanded a "70-group" air force, appropriated funds to modernize the army and navy, enacted a law to unify the armed forces and created the atomic energy commission.

HIGH PRICES-Congress ignored President Truman's repeated and insistent demands for authority to control prices and wages and kept to the classic Republican conception of "laissez faire" with regard to business and industry. It reduced personal income taxes and reduced the domestic budget by two billion dollars.

LABOR-The Taft-Hartley law was enacted over President Truman's veto in an effort to curb union excesses and restore a better balance between labor and management. The minimum wage law, growing constantly less useful as prices and wages rose, was not re-

DRAFTEES:

Back Again

With the peacetime draft a reality in the U. S. again for the first time since 1941 many thousands of young men (19 through 25) are face to face with the prospect of wearing G.I. clothing for 21 months.

Most of them were destined to go into the army, since the navy and air force are scheduled to receive an extremely small percentage of the draftees.

For those non-veterans who wanted to escape the draft there was at least one reasonable method of doing so-enlistment in the national guard or reserves before the President signed the bill. And national guard officers all over the country reported that they were receiving most gratifying number of inquiries from prospective enlistees. Meanwhile, Gen. Omar N. Brad-ley, army chief of staff, reported jovially that the army would try to take on as many as 10,000 draftees a month under the new act.

Selective service, he said, will "back our leadership in the world and will strengthen our foreign policy." That, certainly, was the hope of most Americans, notwithstanding the furious last-ditch efforts of isolationists in congress to block passage of the draft law.

The chief of staff revealed that at present there is only one domestic army division up to full strength. He said the draft and enlistments will bring the army up from 540,000 to 790,000.

Is there any immediate emergency that must be met by a prepared army force? Most authorities think not, and General Bradley himself soft-pedalled the idea.

Eight Ball

With the all-crucial (for him) Democratic convention only days away, with the Republicans throwing political rocks at him. with southern Democrats blustering against him and his policies and with his own Democratic organization feeling very tepid about his prospects, President Truman could be forgiven indeed for having that "behind-the-eight-

MEAT: Too Popular

With the exception of vegetarians and some carrot juice addicts, nearly everyone likes meat. And in the U S. everyone eats a lot of it.

That is why all the Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sprats in America are deeply incensed whenever the meat supply falls off from the normally prodigious amounts available to the con-

A condition of that general description currently prevails in the U. S. and, according to R. J. Eggert of the American Meat institute, it will take at least a year following good crops in 1943 to bring about any substantial increase in the amounts of beefsteaks, pork chops and bacon on the table.

Biggest trouble, Eggert said, is that the ratio of the eaters to the edibles has grown too top heavy since the war.

Wartime drain of flocks and herds and last year's short corn crop are responsible for the currently declining animal population.

But there is no comparable decline in demand in sight. The meat industry forecasts a continuing steady demand for meat because: Incomes are near an all-time high; the real income (actual purchasing power) of the average consumer is one-fourth greater than in 1939; population has increased 15 million in the past decade; people are convinced of the nutritive value of

One Diplomat Knew Better: Scratch One Tyro Diplomat

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON .- Back in the partially-deserted capital after one and before another political convention in these days when Washington's tiger heat drives those who are not too driven otherwise out to the mountains and beaches, I took a short ride with a friendly official who, like most of the press and radio, has to stick out a good share of the summer in the city.

We passed some of the last few fine old residences and a number of embassies and legations. Shutters were drawn, orange-red paint was smeared in a pattern I never have been able to understand on ironwork of high picket-fences and window bars. Some windows were boarded up.

"If it hadn't been for you," I remarked to my companion sitting beside me in what he alludes to as 'the taxpayer's limousine.' might not have been in Washington this summer. I might have been loafing at a mountain- lakeside or elsewhere . . . "How so?" he inquired.

"Don't you recall," I asked, "that you were newspaperman vourself once and, torollarily speaking, met a lot of interesting people? I was one of diplomatic career." The story begins right across the street from the office I now occupy on Eighteenth street, in a fine old brick house which I saw first in the year 1914. The carriage drive in front of it is blocked now by the curbing, probably because the traffic officials thought no automobile could safely make the turn which a "spanking pair" negotiated so easily three decades ago.

In 1914 it was some two hours prevent shipment of potential war after leaving that red brick house that I began "putting off"-(putting Significant is the fact that U. S. things off is a great art and one imports from Russia were higher that has reached a high point of in April than in any other month refinement in Washington, I always this year except March, indicating have practiced it.) If I hadn't put deadlines the rest of my life.

It happened this way. I had just cant, was Russia's shipment of returned from an extended period through the motions of acquiring an education. In the process I acquired the ambition to become a member of the foreign service of the state department. I planned to rise, by easy stages, on pure merit, of course, to the position of ambassador to the Court of St. James. Beyond that, as a cabinet officer says following a change in administration, I had no plans.

I did have four out of five necessary qualifications which I knew from experience on the Quai d'Orsay and elsewhere assured a successful diplomatic career. The four which I possessed were a top-hat, a tailcoat, striped pants and a pair of spats.

The fifth I was confident I could soon acquire easily since I had an excellent letter to the father-in-law of the secretary of state, who had been a secretary of state himself and an important pillar of Washington society. I was sure that under such auspices I could acquire that sine qua non-a wife rich enough to keep a diplomat in the style to which he is supposed to be accustomed.

I recall that afternoon very well. I rang the bell to that door-well, it was a different door of coursethere are four there now with brass handles worn shiny by ambitious Columbians-but at least the door which that afternoon was to be my portal to a brilliant career was right there in the same frame.

It opened, I handed the sik hat and ebony stick to the servant and in a few moments I was being warmly greeted by a gentleman wearing what Sam Blythe once called the most diplomatic whiskers in Washington, John Watson Foster.

I saw that my striped pants and ailcoat which had just enough of a continental cut to make a proper impression, as well as the bowfrom-the-waist I had learned in Berlin, were doing their work and I made mental note of the less unattractive unattached females. So after tossing off a bon mot or two, I left, feeling that my career was virtually launched.

It was still fairly early, so I decided to drop in at the National Press club to which my old schoolmate, David Lawrence, had given me a guest card. As the weather was fine. I decided I might as well walk and give Connecticut avenue a chance to admire my distinguished stripes and tails, although tailcoats and top-hats, per se, caused very little consternation in those days.

As I walked, I idly speculated on what course I would take if kneebreeches were insisted upon when I was presented at court. Meanwhile, I observed the strolling young ladies who, though probably unable to support an ambassador, were nevertheless quite as attractive as any of the better-qualified ones at the re-

I had just about decided not to make an issue of the knee-breeches thing-after all I had been on the stage for a short period in my career and a couple of pairs of long stockings underneath would do for my calves what nature hadn't-when I found myself at the club.

A tall, black-haired gentleman arose and gave me a dignified greeting. I had thought it best while I was considering my diplomatic career to accept a temporary position with the Associated Press-a position I received after some rather tall talk on the part of David Lawrence and a kindly letter from Superintendent Roberts of the Paris bureau for whom I had worked. The gentleman who greeted me at the club was one of the staff which I was to join, assigned to the state department. And he was the man I alluded to-the friendly officialin the early paragraphs of this

Right there, or shall we say in the course of an hour or two, there developed the beginning of a beautiful friendship and the beginning of the end of any illusions concerning a diplomatic career. I applied for membership in the club, never went to another "at home" in the fine old brick house on Eighteenth street.

From that time on it has been deadlines instead of receiving lines. Although I didn't realize it at the time I really wasn't properly equipped for a diplomatic career-my spats were black.

The diplomatic world has not be altogether neglected in the course of meeting deadlines, but when I entered that allegedly romantic demesne as I still do in the course of my job, it is by way of the back door, an entrance which, I have discovered, often provides a much more revealing view of the surroundings. Perhaps it isn't polite to refer to the chancery entrance that way, but it is certainly not the front door.

As it turned out, not many weeks after I had given up my dreams of becoming a Machiavelli or a Metternich, I found myself a caller at six or eight embassies a day-I was put on the diplomatic run because a war had broken out and it was quite as important for belligerents and nervous neutrals to provide news from their points of view as it was for us to collect it.

The butlers in most of the embassies before World War I would as soon admit a reporter as they would a rug-peddler or a seissorsgrinder. It required considerable working over to bring them into

WASHINGTON .- Complicated figures just released by the federal reserve board and the department of commerce carry storm warnings for housewives who are already having trouble making both ends meet. The story is just more of the same old thing: shortages. We want more than is being turned out.

The possible dynamite under prices lies in three new large sums about to go into circulation: (1) money "saved" because of lower income taxes, (2) increased installment payments, (3) increased defense appropriations.

Taxes have been cut 4.8 billion dollars. Much of that tax cut went to working families who are expected to spend it instead of save

Americans are expected to go on the cuff for at least 3.2 billion dollars worth of goods this year. They'll get them through installment buying and through charge accounts. That's the amount they went on the cuff for in 1947, and the rate was rising rapidly at the end of last

Even so, that would have meant so much more money competing for steel, woolen yard goods, leather, autos. But now there are plans to increase that by another three billion dollars. Whether it's two or five billions that the services have to spend this year, it's all new money bidding for what American farms and factories turn out.

Together those three figures add up to between 10 and 13 billion dollars of new spending this coming bet on for the military. Prices Skid Down

There have been flurries of lower prices which gave rise to hopes among the majority of Americans that live on weekly pay checks. The most dramatic was the downward skid of food prices. It didn't last long. Most of those skids started to climb back up right away.

Anyway, those food prices were only part of the picture. The important figure to consider is how much money mills around daily through the stores and banks. It is now around 28 billion dollars. Economists call that "money in circulation " Add another 10 billion dollars to 13 billion dollars and you've got a lot of money bidding for the same amount of goods

All through 1947 the numbers of people at work hung close to 60 million and their numbers are going up. So far this year 1,759,000 more people were at work than last year. Business tiself was so optimistic that in 1947 more than 200,000 new concerns opened shop. During those 12 months only 3,476 concerns failed,

Texas Tests a New Tree

Texas is being made the testing ground for a new type of tree for the state. The Texas A. & M. College Forest Service recently received from the Harvard aboretum a small quantity of seed from a tree species which, until a year ago, botanists believed had disappeared from the face of the earth millions of years ago. The seeds are from the metasequoia, and Silviculturist Chief D. A. Anderson of the Texas Forest Service plans to find out whether they will grow in the state.

The metasequoia, scientists believed, disappeared from the earth about the time of the dinosaur and other giant reptiles. Then in February, 1946, H. H. Hu, a Chinese forester, discovered that the species were growing in a 100-mile area of the Szechuan and Hopen provinces. Harvard joined in an expedition which cofirmed the discovery, and this year obtained some of the seed, which are being distributed to recognized silviculturists for experimental planting in this nation and Europe.

The metasequoia, a coniferous species, is a "cousin" to the giant sequoias growing on the slopes of the Sierras in California. Its history can be traced back into antiquity, along with the ancient ginkgo tree. Today there are only a little over 1,000 trees of this species-almost on the verge of extinction.

Whether the seed received by the Texas Forest Service will prosper and grow metasequoias here only time will tell. However, the Chinese area where the trees were found is in about the same fatitude of Texas. The tree grows more than 100 feet high, bears cones and sheds its leaves in winter.

ALL along Elm street to the old park grounds, the carnival was drawing people like a magnet. From where Ellie sat, on the top step in front of Mrs. Blodgett's boarding house, she could see them hurrying along in groups and couples, laughing and chatting, their merriment floating back to her on the early summer air. Cars whizzed by, carrying others, till it seemed the entire population of the little town was rushing in one direction. All, that is, except Ellie-and possibly Mrs. Blodgett, who, now that the supper work was over, sat contentedly in the kitchen, resting her feet.

There was nothing in the world like carnival music, reflected Ellie, leaning her head wistfully against the porch rail. The nostalgic ripple of tunes, half sad, came to her on sudden bursts of breeze, cutting into her heart with the sharpness of pain. She closed her eyes to shut out the sight of the couples-always the couples, passing through the early dusk, smiling into each other's eyes, murmuring words of which only the tone need be heard.

Carnivals are for couples, she thought. No, for children, too for families, even for old people, visiting their neighbors and winning lamps and blankets. But not for someone alone. Never for someone alone. You could walk through the crowded grounds under the blaze of lights, caught in the blare of melody, and become the loneliest person in all the world. She had been doing fine till the carnival came to Greyville. Why, she thought, oh, why, did the carnival have to come?

She opened her eyes, at a soft touch on her knee, and saw Patty Brown, a little neighbor girl, sitting on the step below her.

"Gee," sighed Patty, on a long, mournful breath. "Isn't it LONE-

Ellie smiled. "For you, too?" she

Patty nodded, hard, "Yes," she said soberly. "Everybody's gone to the carnival but us. I guess you and me, and Miz Blodgett and my Grandma, we're about the only ones in town that didn't go. Miz Blodgett, she never goes anywhere, anyway, and neither does Grandma since my Grandpa died. My Grandpa was swell! He always took me to carnivals." She shook her head in rapturous recollection.

"You live with your grandmother?" Ellie asked. She felt suddenly ashamed of how little she knew the She had been boarding at Mrs. Blodgett's several months, since first she came to Greyville to work in its dress factory and to work even harder at the serious business of forgetting Bruce. "Ever since I remember," answered Patty. "My Grandpa loved carnivals like I do. Grandma was always scoldin' him about it, but he'd take me every night and we'd go on the rides and buy cotton candy. My," she breathed, "I sure miss Grandpa." Ellie studied the serious small face, framed by the smooth brown pigtails. Here too was someone adjusting to a loss, and she had not even taken the trouble to find it out. She had seen Patty often enough, running errands for Mrs. Blodgett and playing hopscotch or jacks on the wide front sidewalk, but she had been too absorbed in her own affairs to ask about the child. How selfish people are, thought Ellie.

"Patty," she asked humbly, I without the magic. No, she decided,

"Yipes!" uttered the little girl, almost toppling off the step backward. "Would I!"

"Be careful!" cried Ellie, thrusting an arm about the little shoulders. She laughed in spite of herself to see the change in the young face. There was nothing serious about it now. It was afire with the dazzle of carnival lights themselves.

"I'll go ask Grandma," shouted Patty, bounding across the lawn. "I'll be right back."

"Bring a wrap," called Ellie after the swinging pigtails, "It may be cool on the rides." She went inside for her own light coat and to go over her makeup at the dresser. Her face in the mirror was smooth and quiet, showing only in pallor the turmoil of the empty months. It was still quite a good face, the eyes a looking at Patty's happy face, it is I who am without the magic.

The barkers called from their concessions, drawing the crowds with imperative cries. Girls passed, carrying feathered kewpies, spangled whips, bright birds and monkeys on sticks. There was a blend of hotdog and hamburger odors, coffee aroma, the roasting fragrance of peanuts and popcorn. Everywhere were people, eating ice-cream sandwiches, drinking pink lemonade from sweaty glasses.

Patty, high on the merry-goround, clung lovingly to her horse's bridle and waved to Ellie every time she passed.

asked a man's voice. Instantly guarded and alert, Ellie turned to look. She gazed warily, straight into two gray eyes. So gray, she thought. I'll always be a pushover for gray eyes. He was not a

With lipstick and rouge and a deliberate turning up of the lips at the corners, it was even an animated face. By concentrating on Patty, Ellie found she could keep the lips curved upward. She would forget all other

"Oh, my goodness," complimented Patty. "You look beautiful!"

Ellie laughed. She tucked the child's hand under her arm and they started for the park grounds. Patty had said, most everybody was already there.

"It's funny you haven't got a boy friend," Patty mused. "Pretty as you are."

"I used to have one," Ellie obliged, out of a long silence. "His name was Bruce."

Patty considered gravely, but asked no more questions.

"Oh, look!" thrilled Patty. "There it is. Please, please, let's go on

"Uh-huh, I remember," said Patty. "He's Mr. Kenyon," she told Ellie, "the man that was riding around in the loudspeaker car. He told me his name today."

"Fun and frolic for all," mimicked the young man, using his hands for a megaphone, "that's me."

"Since Ellie hasn't a boy friend," Patty suggested, "maybe you'd like to take us on the ferris wheel?"

Ellie's chill expression warmed to a flush. "Pat!" she exclaimed.

"Pat!" protested Ellie again, feebly. "She used to have one," Pat con-offered Mr. Kenyon. "I know how it is. I'd like to take you on the ferris wheel. Take over for a few minutes. will you, Mike?" he called to a man at the shooting gallery.

Helplessly, Ellie found herself engineered along.

"So you were asking about me," she managed at last.

"Yes," he answered. "In a little place like this, who wouldn't be? You're an attractive girl, you know. This is a nice town too."

"What ever happened to her?" asked Patty, "the girl friend you haven't got any more?"

"She didn't like my job," replied Mr. Kenyon. "She said she couldn't see any future in it, but it was the only work I knew."

"Huh!" snorted Pat, "She must have been silly!"

"Oh, no," said Mr. Kenyon, "but she made me mad and we had a quarrel. I told her there was another girl who would like it fine. There wasn't, of course, but my real girl thought so." "Pat's right," agreed Ellie. "She was very foolish. There's no more future to anything, than love." They walked up the ramp and the carnival man fastened all three into a seat, with Patty in the middle. The wheel started its wonderful backward swoop, taking them up, up, above the tents, above the trees, above the little trailers where the carnival workers lived. The stars were close, and the people, oh, so small and far below. Ellie shut her eyes, recalling another carnival, another time. She opened them when a hand reached out to clasp her ful marriage is the most unusual and the most satisfying.

"T WANT my marriage to be A success. Is there any secret?" This is what a girl from Philadelphia writes me in a most touching letter. She is 22, has been motherless since her 14th year and has been managed by a grandmother, aunts, her father and not one but two stepmothers.

The marriage history of most of these persons isn't happy. Mary Lee's grandmother was widowed young, married and divorced and now is separating from her third mate, a man 33 years old. Two aunts are divorced and her first stepmother and her father did not make a success of it.

"George is 29," writes Mary Lee. "He is my dream man, although I am not silly enough to tell him that. But he truly has been my ideal since he was in college and I was in first year high school. He has a fine job with an oil company. He has been buying a love of a home, six rooms and a garden in a lovely neighborhood, and everyone is sending us things. Of course, I am the happiest girl in the world."

"But what I want to know," the letter goes on in a more serious tone, "is how to begin now to make my marriage a success. I want children and friends. I want to be a sort of woman that other women admire as a wife and mother; I than from any other. want a silver wedding in 1973, with children and grandchildren.

Determined to Succeed

"George seems perfect to me now -gentle and wise and liked by everybody. But I see the wrecks of marriage all about me and I feel that there must be some secret rules, some way in which, if a man and his wife are determined to stay together and to go on loving each other, they can do it. My mother and her mother were good and devoted wives, but you can't imagine how afraid I am of mistakes, how anxious I am not to do something that I will regret all my life. And George," this charming and innocent letter ends, "feels the

In reply, I want to tell Mary Lee that she and her George, in making these resolves, are starting right. And for the rest, if they will try to remember as the years go by that they both are humans, both faulty, both given to changes of opinion and inconsistencies in action, they will find it easier to forgive each other when the inevitable jars occur.

Put him first in everything. That's perhaps as important a rule as any. Keep him feeling so comfortable and so loved that he always will want to put you first.

This doesn't mean spoiling him or making a doormat of yourself, but it does mean consideration for his ideas and his dignity. It means that you don't make plans without consulting him and that if he isnt enthusiastic about parties, dancing or your old girlhood friends, go very light on all these for a time. Eventually you will work out your own friends, both together, and then parties will be more enjoyable than any lopsided affair where one partner or the other is feeling bored or

"Is there any secret? . . .

NUPTIAL BLISS

Despite dreamy platitudes heralding the neverceasing happiness in marriage, the fact remains that married life is a business. It must be nurtured, cherished and nursed with extreme tenderness and care. Successful marriages are not accidents nor are they unions which resulted from some perplexing, mystical force. They are successful because the participants want them to be and exercise every bit of ingenuity at their command in an allout effort to achieve their ambition.

Mary Lee, 22, is on the verge of being married and apprehensively seeks a secret formula for success in her marriage. She is wary of success because she has witnessed much bitter unhappiness in the marriages of close relatives who have been unable to reap a fruitful harvest from the state of matrimony.

Keep the honeymoon light alive by affectionate little acts and words. Never stop them. Just one little sentence of praise for your husband's generosity will make him more generous. Just saying that he was right in some conversation with other persons will warm his heart and straighten out any hurt or mortification he feels about it.

Think About the Future And above all, Mary Lee, build for the future. The 20's are not all of life, nor are the 30's. It may be that you will be starting the 40's when you, George, Margaret, George Jr. and little Betsy go off for that holiday cruise for which you are hungering now. It may be on the morning of your silver wedding that George, smiling that smile that has meant happiness for you for 25 years, will ask you to open that big box from the furrier's and see if you like it.

You'll still be young, handsome, able to enjoy to the full every moment of the harvest you are sowing now. In fact, I'm not sure but what these later joys have a flavor and a deepness that the younger years never know.

Take as much happiness as you can along the way; keep the real friends, endure whatever you must from George's family with laughter and philosophy and make them love you; go in for pienies, weekend trips, outdoor meals, books, music, garden - everything that the fortunate life of a young American wife may hold.

School yourself not to want what you can't have. Remind yourself that you will change with the passing months and so will George. He'll amaze you sometimes by the wholeheartedness with which he abandons his plans and accepts And believe me, of all the triumphant achievements of a woman's life, a successful marriage is the most unusual and the most satisfying. My good wishes and my prayers will be with you on your wedding day, Mary Lee.

Men Have Better Moods CHICAGO .- Mrs. Gretchen Good,

whose business is talking to persons when they're in their "worst moods," says that men are more polite than women. Mrs. Good, 33, runs a telephone

"wake-up" service, getting people out of bed in time to go to work. "Men are a lot nicer to wake up than women," she says. "A lot of women swear at me a little but none of the fellows seem to mind so much."

Truman on First

PHILADELPHIA-With hundreds of delegates to the 29th quadrennial Democratic convention already here including many of the revolting southerners headed by their champion, Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi, with the platform committee headed by Sen. Francis D. Myers of Pennsylvania already in session over the troublesome civil rights and other issues, with convention managing director Neale Roach of Washington on the job here for several months finally heaving a sigh of relief as housing, seating, credentials and other details finally were settled, this reporter predicts that President Truman will be the convention nominee for his first full term and on the first

On the eve of this convention, as happened only a few short weeks ago when the Republicans were here in this same convention city and convention hall, all is colorful confusion as the big show prepares to get under way. We see the same decorations, only the pictures of Republican leaders have been replaced by those of Democratic lineage.

If anything, these Democratic delegates are a little louder, more boisterous than their Republican counterparts. And it appears to this reporter that the big fight in this convention will not be on the presidency, despite the southern threats and the protestations of Americans for Democratic Action, composed of erstwhile New Dealers. It will be on the platform planks and the nominee for the vice presidency.

Aside from the southern Democratic caucus, scheduled this week prior to the convention, in which the doubtful claim is made that 15 states will be represented, one point of pre-convention interest is the plans being made for celebration of the 100th anniversary of the Democratic national committee which was created just a century ago by the Democratic convention at Baltimore in 1848.

It may be interesting to note that the first Democratic convention was held at Baltimore in 1832, and the only Democratic convention ever held in Philadelphia was in 1936.

Delegates from a few of the southern states are determined to start a revolt against President Truman if possible. At this writing they had determined upon no candidate, alvorces arise from this one source though a few had been pledged to General Eisenhower,

However best informed observers here declare the Eisenhower boom has fallen flat. The former chief of staff doesn't want it, has said so unmistakably and for all anyone knows at this convention he is a Republican. Associate Justice William O. Douglas has personally told President Truman he will not be a candidate.

There will be several names placed in nomination, no doubtfavorite sons who will get a complimentary vote. For instance, the Ohio delegation is pledged to W. A. Julian of Ohio, treasurer of the United States. But after these complimentary votes are given and before the result of the first ballot is announced, the prediction is that the president will have more than the necessary 618 votes out of the 1,234 delegates and the nomination likely will be made unanimous.

Democrats Optimistic Generally speaking, Democrats

here are jubilant over the increased chances of their party as a result of the president's cross-country swing. There is no doubt but that he not only did himself good insofar as the voters are concerned, but also that he brought some rejuvenation and fight into the ranks of party leaders. He demonstrated that he is a scrapper himself, not afraid to swap punches and even before his trip was over he had some of the GOP congressional leaders whimpering.

It is evident that the President intends to make the record of the 89th congress on domestic affairs one of the major issues of his eampaign. For more than two years the GOP controlled congress worked its will with the President kicking his program, his messages and his suggestions on domestic problems from pillar to post. And the first time he fought back he drew screams and screeches of anger from his GOP opponents, who also must go to the people on the record of accomplishment of the 80th congress.

Veterans at Helm

Some party veterans will be at the helm when the Democratic convention gets under way. Sen. Alben Barkley, minority leader, is keynoter and temporary chairman. Congressman Sam Rayburn of Texas, who was speaker of the house longer than any other man, is permanent chairman. Mrs. Mary Norton of New Jersey, member of congress since 1924 and veteran national convention delegate, is chairman of the credentials committee.

1948 HONORARY AWARDS

BATHERTOP, HORACE J .- Few men are more deserving of this signal recognition. Throughout the past year you at no time cut a boxtop, worked on a prize slogan or dropped everything to try for a jackpot. Take a degree of Doctor of Extraordinary Willpower and help yourself to a glass of beer.

MOOSEJAW, BASIS R.-It is a pleasure to see you in today's line of honorary degree takers. So far as we know, you are that outstanding example of manhood, an American who, having his old car to dispose of, let his neighbor have it at a low price instead of conniving with slick operators to get twice what it was worth. Take any degree that fits, and won't you stay for lunch with the faculty?

CARP, OSCAR W .- On numerous occasions you were observed standing in the doorway of a bus in the rush hour. Asked to step forward, you did so. A degree is not enough. Oscar. Name your wish and you shall have it.

WIGGLESWORTH, PRENTICE K .- The university crowns you a man among men and a citizen extraordinary. Although in a position by a little skulduggery and a mild twisting of conscience to get money from the government, you bothered to realize that Uncle Sam is being gypped right and left, that he is in a hole up to his neck and that he is too good a guy to swindle. You also openly expressed concern about the government's financial future, even dropping the funnies to analyze the situation. You get not only an honorary degree but strawberry ice cream with cherries.

CRUMMETT, THADDEUS R .-You are an American workingman and union member. We have the positive proof that, instead of blindly following a wild-eyed leader when you were convinced he was wrong, you voted the other way at the special meeting. You were heard to make the statement on your feet and in a loud voice, "I could be right, too." Take a box of cigars as you go out and help yourself to the chicken sandwichesall white meat.

TUPPER, HALLOWAY G.-We want you to take a degree printed on special gloss paper and also $1,000 in cash. Called before a committee of the United States congress in a time of national crisis to answer the simple question, "Are you a member of the Communist party?" you did so. You did not demand to read a long statement. Furthermore. you showed up without your lawyer. Get up there nearer the head of the line where you belong!

COOKSEY, GERALD K. H. -What are you doing away down here? We meant to honor you first. You shot a composer of radio jingles on sight. See us in the dean's office later. We're throwing a special party.

QUESTION: Could you give me any information on tile flooring? Can I do the work myself?

ANSWER: Whatever type you choose, remember that a solid color will show dirt very quickly. Mottled colors stay clean-looking much longer. It is perfectly possible for a home owner to lay tile, provided he is handy with tools and has a good guide book. Any kind of tile must be set in the proper "bed" no matter whether it is clay tile, asphalt, rubber or anything else.

QUESTION: Should one patch plaster that has come off in a basement?

ANSWER: If it's ordinary plaster that is used for living rooms, it would be best to remove all of it instead of trying to patch it. This type of plaster is affected by dampness and is not intended for use in a basement

QUESTION: How can I polish bad scratches off my glass table

ANSWER: That type of polishing cannot be done at home. It is a job for a dealer in plate glass who has the equipment.

Sweet Allyssum Sweet alyssum is an important

garden accessory. Its real purpose is to accent—to edge borders and paths and to point up other garden flowers and shrubs. There are several varieties of sweet alyssum, ranging in height from four to 12 inches. Height is an important point to consider in making the selection, since shearing is necessary for continuous bloom. Plants that are too low for shearing-those that grow to a height of only four or four-and-a-half inches, for example, will go to seed early in the season.

QUESTION: There are finger marks on the head board of my bed, probably caused by perspiring hands. How can I remove these marks?

ANSWER: Clean the surface by washing with thick suds of mild soap, not just thin, watery soapsuds. Follow with a clean, damp cloth and rub dry. Turpentine may also help. If this does not work, try subbing the marks with a scratchless scouring powder and a little light oil on the ball of your finger.

100 Things You Should Know About--COMMUNISM IN THE U.S. A.

This is the first of a series on the Communist conspiracy and its influence in this country as a whole, on religion, on education, on labor and on our pernment. Prepared and released by the Committee on Un-American Activities, U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.; J. Parnell Thomas, New Jersey, Chairman; Karl E. Mundt, South Dakota; John McDowell, Pennsylvania; Richard M. Nixon, California; Rich B. Vail, Illinois; John S. Wood, Georgia; John E. Rankin, Mississippi; J. Hardin Peterson, Florida; F. Edward Hebert, Louisiana; Robert E. Stripling, Chief Investigator and Benjamin Mandel, Director of Research.

Forty years ago, Communism was just a plot in the minds of a very few peculiar people.

Today, Communism is a world force governing millions of the human race and threatening to govern all of it.

WHO ARE THE COMMUNISTS? HOW DO THEY WORK? WHAT DO THEY WANT? WHAT WOULD THEY DO TO

For the past 10 years your committee has studied these and other questions and now some positive answers can be made. Some answers will shock the citizen who has not examined Communism closely, Most answers will infuriate the Com-

These answers are given in five booklets, as follows:

ONE HUNDRED THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT COMMUNISM IN THE U. S. A.

ONE HUNDRED THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT COMMUNISH IN RELIGION.

ONE HUNDRED THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT COMMUNISM IN EDUCATION.

ONE HUNDRED THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT COMMUNISM IN LABOR. ONE HUNDRED THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT

COMMUNISM IN GOVERNMENT. These booklets are intended to help you know a Communist

when you hear him speak and when you see him work. If you ever find yourself in open debate with a Communist the facts here given can be used to destroy his arguments and expose him as he is for all to see.

Every citizen owes himself and his family the truth about Communism because the world today is faced with a single choice: To go Communist or not to go Communist. NOT only does Chevrolet stand out as the first and only low-priced car with all the following major advances which comprise the soundest and best in modern motoring ... not only does it offer all these major advantages of Big-Car quality at lowest prices ... but it offers them at prices that are now definitely and decisively lower than those of any other car that even remotely approaches it in quality! It's the first and only low-priced car with the original and outstanding Unitized Knee-Action Ride. It's the first and only low-priced car with a world's champion Valve-in-Head Engine. It's the first and only low-priced car with the enviable Body by Fisher. It's the first and only low-priced car with the triple safety-protection of Fisher Unisteel Body-Construction, the Unitized Knee-Action Ride and Positive-Action Hydraulic Brakes.-

And yet, despite the fact that CHEVROLET AND ONLY CHEV-ROLET IS FIRST to offer all these major advancements of low-cost motoring, it holds an even greater price-advantage and gives you even more value for your dollars in comparison with other automobiles today than at any previous time in Chevrolet history!

A MAN WHO DID FINE WORK B EZALEL, grandson of Hur, son of Caleb, was called of God to how to do fine work, having been nated shrimps makes a good main trained in Egyptian art and handicraft-metallurgy, carpentry, weaving, embroidery, leather-dyeing, gem-cutting and confections. He

TRAITS OF CHARACTER

BEZALEL possessed knowledge as a fine craftsman, but back of this technical knowledge was spiritual discerament. He was filled "with the spirit of God." He worked at the temporal, but he worked for the eternal.

He possessed wisdom-wisdom which comes only from God. Wisdow which means understanding in the sense in which Solomon speaks dish. Add cucumbers to this for in Proverbs.

possessing an understanding of his meal. task in the light of God's eternal will. Here, I fancy, Henry Van Dyke may have got the inspiration for his great poem on "Work."

HANDS THAT SERVE GOD

A HOLIAB, meaning "the father is my tabernacle," was called of God to help Bezalel in this high and holy task. He was of the tribe of Dan-which tribe furnished Hiram as chief artist in building Solomon's temple. Aholiab, "given of God" for this divine task, gladly dedicated his skillful hands in helping Bezalel.

And there were many others who helped-"wise hearted," we read. Here was a task. God's task, and here were leaders, Bezalel and Aholiab, ready to serve God; and here were helpers, wise hearted.

. . . WORK FOR EVERY DAY

TURNING now from the fascinat-ing story of how Bezalel and Aholiab and their helpers constructed and furnished the Tabernacle at Sinai, according to the minutest detail as outlined in the passages above cited. Let us ask, What about our work?

There is work for everyone every day. "To every man his work." And every task is essential in bringing to pass the Kingdom of God on earth. God did not make us for idleness He made us for a purpose -that purpose to do our particular work. None other can do what God has ordained that we should do.

"My father worketh hitherto, and work," said Jesus. "Work, for the night cometh when no man can work."

Will my work be done ere the night come?

"Time worketh. Let me work, 100, Busy as time my work I ply, Till I work the work of eternity." . . .

Whether we like it or not, we have been thrust into a world that has been crowded up into such close quarters that there is no longer any 'home mission" field or "foreign mission" territory The needs of all the world are our problem.

OF COURSE, there are nothing like hamburgers for a real favorite as a supper dish. But, here's a new way to prepare the burgers, for they're smothered in onions and noodles.

Special Hamburger Patties (Serves 6-8)

1/2 cup milk

1 cup soft bread crumbs 1/2 cup grated onion

1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning 11/2 teaspoons salt

2 pounds hamburger 4 tablespoons flour

6 slices bacon

Add seasonings, bread crumbs and milk to meat. Mix well and shape into patties, three-fourths inch thick. Dredge with flour. Wrap a slice of bacon around each patty and fasten with a toothpick. Broil patties until they are thoroughly cooked and nicely browned. Cook one-half pound of broad noodles until tender; then season with butter, salt and pepper. While noodles cook, slice three large onions and fry them in drippings.

To serve, place noodles on a hot and smother with the onions.

. . . A DELICIOUS DESSERT that goes well with this is a pear pie. Bake it in a glass dish and bring it out to the porch to serve.

Sausage meat can be mixed with egg and soft bread crumbs, then baked and served with cooked, drained and lightly fried noodles.

So FAR the United States has taken only a mild interest in the coming Olympic games to be held this summer in London. It has been taken for granted that the U.S. will mop up again as usual. Even more so this time, with our athletes wellfed and most other competitors reportedly underfed.

'So if we win, weil, why not? The United States team should win in a romp. It shouldn't be even close. It should be no contest. That's the early setup. No credit if you winpretty awful if you lose.

At the Berlin games in 1936, we had several talks with trainers and coaches and star athletes from other nations. Here was their verdict:

"The United States is a nation of acrobats-not athletes. You can't win from 400 meters and on beyond this distance. You have no runners with any staminarunners who can travel a mile and longer.

"You are marvelous acrobatslike circus performers. You can sprint and pole vault and hurdle. These are all acrobatics. They make no demand on stamina or courage.' It still takes an athlete to run and jump. The answer is that we have won too seldom at testing distances. We have no runners from the mile to the marathon worth naming.

Once again, we'll probably win the pole vault-rated a feat of acrobatics and not the work of an athlete by foreign nations. It is certainly on the easier side than it is to get ready for 1,500 or 5,000 or 10,000 meters.

The U.S. has never been much interested in stamina-which is even more important than speed. Speed gives out quickly. Stamina carries you all the way through.

When you sift all the angles, the United States hasn't done nearly as well as our ballyhoo experis have figured out the case. Without our Negro stars, this country would have been something of a joke.

In place of mopping up in London, platter, top with hamburger pattics we still can be something of a joke -despite the winning edge we have in food, the main basis of condition. We have every advantage this way. It will be interesting to see what we can do with it.

Stars Miss Big Show

One world series weakness is that too many stars had no chance to show at the big show.

Napoleon Lajoie, one of the greatest, never was seen in this classic. And he was something to see, the most graceful ballplayer that ever lived. And one of the game's greatest natural hitters.

Walter Johnson came to his first world series when he was on his way over the mystic hill. The earlier Walter Johnson would have joined Mathewson with three shutouts.

Bob Feller has never had a world series appearance, and Feller also is just about over the top. Feller came to Cleveland 12 years ago and he has been pouring that fast ball through for a long time. The navy also took three or four of his best years. The navy caught him at his peak and held him a long time. Also after returning to baseball, Feller has given a good part of his time to outside interests, which hasn't helped his baseball. But he still would be a shining spot in any post-season championship. Feller is one of the all-time greats. He won't have to bother about his spot at

Cooperstown. Rube Waddell, a world series natural, had his lone chance in 1905 when he suffered an injured shoulder in a train scuffle. So the Mathewson - Waddell duel never came off. That would have been up in the super class, the motion picture colossal stuff.

Still many stars have made the world series grade-Mathewson, Alexander, Cobb, Ruth, Collins, Jackson, Hornsby, Grove, Wagner, Brown, Kling, Plank, Coombs, Bender, Johnson, Wood, Fox, Fritsch, Dizzy Dean, Cochrane, Dickey, too many more to mention.

It would be nice to see Feller and a few more stars, who have never made the big show, slip under the tent and mingle with the elephants.

In the middleweight boxing division my nomination for the top man is Bob Fitzsimmons. Fitz was middleweight champion, light-heavyweight champion and heavyweight champion. He was a brilliant boxer. He was also a terrific puncher.

Fitz broke seven bones in both hands punching Jeffries in their second fight. He almost ripped Jeff's face away from his head. But he couldn't knock out the Jeffries of that period. No one else could. And this includes Jack Johnson who whipped a half-bald, fat, fading old-timer who was in no shape to fight anybody.

I saw Jeffries training for the Johnson fight in 1919. He was pitiful. He was a long way from the Jeffries I knew in 1903.

Can Black-Draught Help Physical Fatigue?

Yes, Black-Draught may help physical fatigue if the only reason you have that listless feeling is because of constipation. Black-Draught, the friendly laxative, is usually prompt and thorough when taken as directed. It costs only a penny or less a dose. That's why it has been a best-seller with four generations. If you are troubled with such symptoms as loss of appetite, headache, upset stomach, flatulence, physical fatigue, sleeplessness, mental haziness, bad breath - and if these symptoms are due only to constipation - then see what Black-Draught may do for you.
